The Honorable Scott M. Matheson
Governor, State Of Utah

The Honorable J. Allan Crockett
Chief Justice, Utah Supreme Court

The Honorable Members of the Utah State Legislature

It is my pleasure to transmit herewith the seventh annual report of the Utah Courts. This report covers the work of the Supreme Court, the Trial Courts, and the Justice of the Peace Courts, and reflects the business transacted by the Judicial branch of government in Utah.

This past judicial year has seen some outstanding progress in the courts, and the Judicial Council is achieving the goals they established in the Judicial Plan. Among these accomplishments has been the further implementation of the new Circuit Courts. This has been assisted by the completion of a performance audit on the new Circuit Court System by the Office of the Legislative Auditor General. Steps are being taken to convert the short comings identified by the audit primarily in the act itself, but by in large, the new Circuit Court System received very good marks for its first two years of operation.

The Judicial Training program for both judges and court administrative personnel continues to upgrade and keep current the judicial skills of the Utah Court System. In-state as well as out-of-state continuing education helps to improve the quality of justice in Utah.

In the 1980's, the Utah Court System will face many of the challenges common to other levels of state government. To ensure the Judiciary can effectively and efficiently meet these challenges, the State Judicial Information System (SJIS), now in its second year of development, will provide the courts, the Office of the Court Administrator, and State Legislature with accurate and timely statistical information to aid administrative decision making. This advanced computer technology linkage between the Trial Courts and the Office of the Court Administrator will help us meet the challenges of the 80's.

The brief description of these programs are high on the priority goals list established by the Judicial Council for the purpose of improving the quality of the Judiciary in Utah. We appreciate the understanding and funding support provided by the State Legislature, thereby making it possible to complete these new programs and continue to improve the court system as a whole.

Respectfully submitted,

RICHARD V. PEAY
State Court Administrator

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY

As the Chief Judge of the Utah Judicial Council, it is my pleasure to report on the activities of the Council and the Trial Courts of Utah for the past year, a status report regarding ongoing projects, and our plans and hopes for the future.

Utah, along with California and Georgia, administer the Trial Courts through a Judicial Council, which has elected representatives from all the courts of Utah with the exception of the Juvenile Court. This representative base insures the Council's membership will be made up of judges who are committed to judicial improvement, and this membership encourages a broad jurisdictional base to evolve policies, and avoids a concentration of power and authority in one court structure, as is the case in most states. The Office of the State Court Administrator serves as staff to the Council, and is responsible for implementing Council policy. The Court Administrator provides a vocal spokesman for the Council and the judiciary in general in all matters of importance relating to the operation of the courts. The Office of the Court Administrator has also developed into the logical point of contact for other branches of government, news media, and the general public when matters of judicial concern need to be addressed. This review will cover the period of judicial operation from July 1, 1979 to June 30,1980.

At the beginning of the year a set of Sentencing Guidelines for felony cases became operational. Sentencing Guidelines for misdemeanor violations were given a test run and are in the process of being evaluated and a program adopted.

The 1979 Legislature, at the urging of the Judicial Council, recognized the need for legal research assistance to the District Courts. Funds were appropriated and one full time Research Attorney opened this office. It was immediately successful and the 1980 Legislature appropriated additional funds to expand its capabilities.

With assistance from many sources, including the Judicial Council and the Court Administrator's Office, the 1980 Legislature approved a complete revision of the Rules and Code of Criminal Procedure. This brings procedures in harmony with the revised Criminal Code passed several years ago.

District, Circuit, and Juvenile Judges were provided with a comprehensive Criminal Bench Book incorporating the new Rules and Code of Criminal Procedure.

All Justices of the Peace now have, as part of their annual education program, a Model Records System. This means all of these courts now have available a Court Records System which incorporates modern business practices and provides a basis for audit review which will protect the court.

Circuit Courts and Justice of the Peace Courts are all provided with a periodically updated Uniform Bail Schedule. This insures reasonable uniformity, statewide, for all citizens when posting bail for misdemeanor violations.

Under the Legislative statute establishing the Judicial Council and the Office of the Court Administrator, significant services are being provided in an efficient and economical manner. Judicial resources are being allocated to meet changing workloads as well as to meet emergency situations. Judicial education, based upon a resolution adopted by the Judicial Council, is being provided to all judges. This includes judicial education programs within the state and individual judge's attendance at national judicial education programs such as the National Judicial College. Judicial budgets are prepared and Legislature approval secured to meet the essential needs for the operation of the Trial Courts. Mundane, but absolutely essential, operations such as personnel actions, payroll, travel reimbursement, supplies and equipment are efficiently being processed in a manner never available to the Trial Courts prior to the creation of the Office of the Court Administrator.

Under the direction of the Judicial Council, the Court Administrator's Office is now proficient and is delivering services for the courts in planning, personnel training, administrative operations and technical services. Staff services are provided not only to the Judicial Council, but to the Judicial Council Advisory Committee and many standing and ad hoc committees established by the Judicial Council.

Looking to the future, the Judges of Utah, through the Judicial Council, are concerned about the caseload of the Utah Supreme Court, and encourage the Legislature to effectively deal with this problem. The District Court Judges, endorsed by the Judicial Council, are proposing the creation of a statewide Family Court within the jurisdiction of the District Court. The Judiciary of Utah is cooperating whole heartedly with the Utah Constitutional Revision Commission for a comprehensive revision of the Judicial Article of the Utah Constitution. The Circuit Court has now been operational for two years, and some minor house-keeping legislation changes need to be made to bring the court to its full potential as a statewide misdemeanor Trial Court.

The most important matter of concern to the well being of the Judiciary of Utah is the problem of adequate judicial salaries. Because there is no systematic method for the Legislature to deal with this problem on a regular basis, judicial salaries in Utah have continued to decline when compared with all surrounding states. Able judges are leaving the bench for this reason only, and the pool of potential applicants for judicial vacancies is getting smaller and less representative of the quality of the attorneys of Utah. Hopefully, the 1981 Utah Legislature will provide a long-term solution to a problem that could impair the quality of justice in Utah.

The Courts of Utah, while faced with serious problems and difficulties, are optomistic and on a clearly improving course and will continue to deliver to the people of the state of Utah the best in judicial services.

Respectfully submitted,

THORNELY K. SWAN

UTAH JUDICIAL COUNCIL
CITIZENS ADVISORY COMMITTEE

In 1975 the Utah Judicial Council formed a citizens Advisory Committee whose role it is to study and make recommendations to the Council on the operation of the Utah Judicial System, including, but not limited to:

- Court facilities and Services
- Judicial Selection and tenure
- Judicial Compensation
- Court Organization and Administration
- Public Education related to the courts and the school system and news media.
- The relationship of the courts to other parts of the Criminal Justice System.

The Committee is made up of 14 appointed citizens from a geographical cross-section of the state. They meet once a month to discuss subjects and programs vital to the Judicial Council. Some of the programs in which they are actively working are:

1. Law and You Program: An education program designed to familiarize the lay citizens with judicial processes.

2. Speakers Bureau: Judges that appear at schools, and other civic groups speaking on appropriate topics of interest.

3. Proposed Public Information Program: A means to further inform the lay public of judicial processes.

4. Legislative Activity: Regarding kay Judicial Legislative programs and proposals actively pursued. The Committee supports innovative programs which would improve Utah's judiciary.

COURT ORGANIZATION

Overview of the Utah Court System

I. INTRODUCTION

The Utah Court System is composed of a Supreme Court, a court of general jurisdiction (District Court), and three courts of limited jurisdiction (Circuit, Juvenile, and Justice of the Peace Courts). The Supreme Court, District Court, and Justices' Courts are mandated by the Utah constitution. The state constitution allows courts inferior to the Supreme Court to be created by law. The Circuit and Juvenile Courts were created by legislative act.

In 1973 the administration of the Utah courts was substantially changed by the Court Administrators Act. The act provided for the office and staff of the Court Administrator and establishment of the Utah Judicial Council. The Judicial Council, chaired by the Chief Judge of the District Court, is the administrative policy-making body for the courts.

The 1977 general legislative session passed the Circuit Court Act which established a new court of limited jurisdiction, the Circuit Court, and abolished the existing City Court. The Circuit Court Act became effective in July 1978.

Administrative policy-making authority is granted to the Judicial Council while the Supreme Court has ultimate rule-making authority.

Jurisdictional divisons are generally simple, except that the District Court has both trial and appellate jurisdiction. Jurisdiction is uniform throughout the court system and uniform rules of procedure and administration are followed.

II. Court Structure

A. Appellate Courts

The Supreme Court is the court of last resort in Utah. It has appellate jurisdiction over any final judgment of the District and Juvenile Courts and any constitutional issues from the Justices' Courts and Circuit Courts. The Supreme Court has authority to issue original and remedial writs.

The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and four associate justices who serve ten-year terms. The justice with the shortest remaining term of a regular elected term is designated the Chief Justice. The court sits in Salt Lake City and has no divisions.

Currently, consideration by the Legislature is being given to creating an Intermediate Appellate Court in Utah.

B. Trial Courts

The Trial Court of general jurisdiction is the District Court. It has original jurisdiction in all civil and criminal matters, except those jurisdictions prohibited by law, such as juvenile and municipal ordinance violations. The District Court has appellate jurisdiction over judgments from all inferior courts. There are seven judicial districts and 24 District Court Judges. There are four districts having only one judge. The constitution authorizes the District Court to exercise general supervising control over all inferior courts.

The 1977 General Session passed the Circuit Court Act establishing the Circuit Court and abolishes the City Court, as of 1978. The Circuit Court will have civil jurisdiction in actions involving less than $5,000. This jurisdiction will be concurrent with the Justices' Courts to $750. The court's criminal jurisdiction covers misdemeanors and traffic violations. The state was divided into 12 circuits. Present legislation authorizes 33 Circuit Court Judges. A small claims court is established as a division of the new Circuit Court.

The Justices of the Peace Courts have civil jurisdiction in actions involving less than $750 and criminal jurisdiction in petit larceny, non-felonious assault and breaches of the peace. A small claims court may be established as a division of the Justice of the Peace Court. There are 156 Justices of the Peace.

The Juvenile Court has exclusive original jurisdiction over juvenile-related matters. The state is divided into five Juvenile Court districts, each with a statutory fixed number of judges. There are presently nine Juvenile Court Judges. There are no specialized divisions of the court.

1979 JUDICIAL CONFERENCE

Recognizing the benefits to be gained from the assembly of Judges from all levels of the Utah Judiciary to discuss matters of mutual concern, Justice J. Allan Crockett of the Utah Supreme Court initiated such a conference in January of 1963 at the Utah State Capitol. This initial effort was so well received by the Judiciary that an ad hoc organization was formed to formally perpetuate the meetings. In connection with this organization, articles of organization were drawn. The objective of the meetings was identified as providing a forum for the discussion and study of subjects of common interest in the line of judicial duties.

Following this first meeting, conferences were held periodically and their success and acceptance by the Judges contributed to the adoption by the 1973 Legislature of a statutory conference on an annual basis. Within the 1973 Court Administrator's Act, is a provision for the annual Judicial Conference for all courts of this state, the purpose of which is to study and improve the administration of the courts. The State Court Administrator and the Administrator of the Juvenile Courts are responsible for the planning and supervision of the Conference under the supervision and direction of their council and board.

Following the excellent tradition, the State Court Administrator and Juvenile Court Administrator conducted the Seventh Annual Judicial Conference on September 27, 28, 29, 1979, in Park City, Utah. Directing the conference planning and presiding during the course of the Conference were the officers. The Conference Chairman was District Judge Bryant H. Croft, the Vice Chairman was Juvenile Judge Joseph E. Jackson, with Circuit Judge Arthur Christean and Justice of the Peace James Kilby serving as committee members.

The assembled Judges and spouses were treated to remarks entitled "Image of the Courts" by the featured speaker Justice Paul C. Reardon, retired Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. Following that presentation, a panel discussed how Utah views its courts and utilized a local public opinion poll as the basis. Seminar sessions followed on such subjects as "Cameras in the Courtroom," "Commitment and Filing Guidelines," "Awarding of Attorney Fees," and the then proposed "Code and Rules of Criminal Procedure."

Another highlight of the Conference was the appearance of the Honorable Scott M. Matheson, accompanied by his wife. The Governor offered his annual message to the judiciary during the traditional "Governor's Luncheon."

The Amicus Curiae award was presented to Mr. Robert Mullins in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the judiciary as a reporter for the Deseret News.

JUDICIAL ASSISTANCE

Since the enactment of the Court Administrator Act in 1973, the office has, within the policy and plan adopted by the Judicial Council, engaged in the integration and utilization of Senior Judges and Substitute Judges in providing judicial assistance to the District Courts when the need for such assistance has arisen. This program has been greatly enhanced by the passage of the Circuit Court Act, which provided additional flexibility within the judicial system and authority to request Circuit Judges to assist the District Courts and also accept requests to sit in circuits other than their principle location.

This additional authority and resource of judicial assistance has proven to be one of the most significant and valuable aspects of the Circuit Court system. During the past year, considerable contributions to the District bench have been made by Circuit Judges in areas of need in concert with the existing program for District Judges, Juvenile Judges, and Senior Judges. Many of the judicial assistance assignments listed below consisted of numerous cases being handled by the visiting Judges on law and motion calendars, default divorce calendars, or multiple trials. Each request for assistance has been graciously accepted by all Judges concerned.

All judicial assistance rendered during the past fiscal year of July 1, 1979 to June 30, 1980, are not listed below, such as numerous exchanges of benches between Judges. Also, the list reflects the number of assignments made and not the number of Judge days contributed, nor the number of cases handled by the Judge. This program has resulted in considerable savings to the tax payers.

STATE JUDICIAL INFORMATION SYSTEM

The Utah Code places responsibility for the Utah State Court Administrator to gather statistical and financial information for the courts, and submit reports to the Executive and Judicial branches of government, the public and other concerned parties concerning the courts' operations. In order to do this effectively, the State Judicial Information System (SJIS) has been created in Utah. The purpose of the new State Judicial Information System is to:

1. Provide timely, accurate, and complete court statistical, revenue, and expense information to facilitate decision-making by the State Judicial Council and the Court Administrator.

2. Provide information to support problem identification, court needs and facility planning, and assessment of trial court adherence to policies and standards established by the Judicial Council.

3. Provide court activity reports on current civil and criminal filings, dispositions and post-judgement events to individual trial courts and other appropriate state agencies upon request.

4. Identify causes of court delay to help effect court delay reduction.

5. Facilitate centralized collection and dissemination of court disposition information.

Local courts will provide court activity and financial data to the Court Administrator, and will receive management reports in return. The data capturing device for courts not using a computer will be a redesigned register of actions. There are major advantages to making the information system input sheet a by-product of regularly required court tasks. A copy of the register of action sheet would be sent to the Office of the Court Administrator twice during case processing; once at case initiation and once at final disposition. The reporting sheet would have all major case events and dates. Case age computations would be made after the case is closed.

Automated courts would use a different procedure to submit data than described above. Once per month they would scan their computer files and prepare a current case status record for each case. Those records would be written on a computer tape and sent to the Office of the Court Administrator. The following courts are developing trial court operations systems and may be fully automated: District 2, District 3, District 4, Circuit 3, Circuit 5 and Circuit 8. Those courts represent approximately 75% of the total court volume.

The Utah SJIS will include civil, criminal and financial modules for the district courts. There will not be a separate appellate module, but appeal cases will be identified and included with other civil and criminal cases. There will be civil, criminal, traffic and financial modules for circuit and justice courts. In the criminal module, it will also be necessary to capture defendant and charge information to support Utah's Criminal History program.

The primary output of the SJIS system will be summary court activity statistics and summary court revenue and expense data. In addition, exception case reports will be produced and criminal case/defendant/charge level data will be supplied to the Utah "Bureau of Criminal Identification."

In 1976, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administraion (LEAA) contracted with INSLAW (Institute for Law and Social Research) to design and program a general purpose computerized court system. One of the main criteria was that the system be transferable and that it have the ability to be tailored to meet specific local needs. This system called PROMIS was completed and offered free to the justice community in mid 1979. It offers standardization, economy, and speed of implementation.

SJIS project team members worked with INSLAW staff and successfully tailored PROMIS and SJIS design specifications. It is now being test implemented on a Wang computer. The experience with PROMIS can be used to assist the local trial courts as they apply this software to their needs and provide data to SJIS.

It is estimated that court clerk training will begin in May 1981. The system will be tested in selected courts between May — June 1981. In July 1981 the system will be implemented in all court locations.

SUPREME COURT CLERK

Mr. Geoffrey J. Butler
332 State Capitol
Salt Lake City, Utah 84114

A. Organization

The Supreme Court consists of five Justices, which number may be increased or decreased by the Legislature. A majority of the Judges are necessary to form a quorum or render a decision. Upon the disqualification of a Justice from hearing a particular case before the Court, the remaining Justices may call a District Judge to sit on the Supreme Court for the hearing of that case. A Chief Justice presides over the Court and is the Justice who has the shortest remaining term on the Bench. The term of office of a Justice of the Supreme Court is ten (10) years and until his successor is elected or appointed and qualified.

B. Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction means the power of the Court to hear and determine the matter in controversy. This includes limits of both the subject matter and the territory within the authority of the particular court may be exercised.

The Supreme Court has original jurisdiction to issue writs of mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, quo warranto and habeas corpus. Each of the Justices has the power to issue writs of habeas corpus to any part of the state. In other cases, the Supreme Court has appellate jurisdiction only, and may review all final judgments of the District Court. In equity cases the appeal may be on questions of both law and fact, in cases at law the appeal must be on questions of law only.

Any final judgment from the District Court may be appealed to the Supreme Court subject to the appeal being perfected according to the statute and rules of the Court.

Generally, appeals from the Circuit Court and Justice of the Peace Courts are restricted to constitutional issues only. However, the Supreme Court may, by certiorari, review decisions or judgments of the District Court which are the result of cases appealed to that Court from lower courts on questions of jurisdiction of the District Court. While the general jurisdictional limit of civil cases which may be filed in the Circuit Court is $2,500, the limit on cases appealed to the Supreme Courts, subsequent to trial de novo, in only those cases in which the amount in controversy exceeds $100.00.

C. Administration

The Supreme Court is supported by the Clerk of the Court and his staff. The Court appoints the Clerk who serves at the pleasure of the Court. The Court also may appoint, remove at pleasure, and fix the compensation for such deputy clerks and other assistants as may be necessary for the transaction of its business.

Pursuant to the above mentioned authority, the staff of the Clerk consists of 1 Chief Deputy Clerk, 2 Deputy Clerks, 3 Secretaries, 2 Assistant Librarians, and 9 Research Attorneys.

On July 1, 1978 the Supreme Court appointed a Predisposition Staff, composed of three persons each with substantial legal backgrounds. These staff members read briefs and motions which are submitted to the Court, and assist the members of the Court by making abstracts and digests of the documents submitted.

DISTRICT COURTS

A. ORGANIZATION

The District Courts are divided into seven Judicial Districts, each of which consists of several counties. The Legislature may change the territorial boundaries of any Judicial District, or increase or decrease the number of districts, of the judges thereof.

As of June 30, 1977, there were 24 District Judges, each of whom is assigned to sit in a particular district. The number of judges holding office in each district is as follows:

1st District	1 Judge
2nd District	5 Judges
3rd District	11 Judges
4th District	4 Judges
5th District	1 Judge
6th District	1 Judge
7th District	1 Judge

The judges of each Judicial District are responsible for holding terms of court at each county seat at least three times a year. The dates of court are set by the Uniform Rules of Practice.

B. JURISDICTION

The District Court has original jurisdiction in all civil and criminal matters not excepted by the Constitution and not prohibited by law. The District Court, or any judge thereof, also has the power to issue writs of habeas corpus, mandamus. injunction, quo warrants, certiorari, prohibition, and other writs necessary to carry into effect their orders, judgements, and decrees, and to give them general control over inferior courts and tribunals within their respective jurisdictions.

The types of cases and legal matters over which the District Court has jurisdiction are not limited by the Constitution or by statute except that all jurisdiction and power exercised by the District Court must be original (except for appeals from inferior courts and administrative tribunals). All cases arising from a violation of city or town ordinances where a Circuit Court or Justice of the Peace Court is established are subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of such an inferior court.

All felony cases are prosecuted in the District Court subsequent to a preliminary hearing being conducted in the lower court and the accused being bound over to the District Court.

A procedural limitation of venue is imposed upon the District Court by statute, which has the effect of empowering only certain District Courts to entertain a specific matter. This means that a District Court is recognized in every county of the state with the power to adjudicate cases only within the county in which the court is sitting. Their territorial limitations, which are set by the statute governing venue, require that civil cases affecting real property be tried in the county in which the defendant resides or the county in which the incident occurred.

The District Court sits as an appellate court for the Circuit Courts and Justice of the Peace Courts and has supervisory control of the same. Upon receipt of an appeal from the Justice of the Peace Courts, the District Court conducts a trial de novo which consists of a complete retrial of the case and makes entirely new decisions as to fact and law as thought the case has been filed originally in the District Court.

C. ADMINISTRATION

Each of the District Judges is supported by a staff consisting of a Certified Shorthand Reporter and a Court Clerk in each county. The County Clerk is charged by statue with the responsibility of acting as Clerk of the Court. The responsibility entails such duties as preparation of court calendars, filing and maintaining court files and records, and such other matters as the court may direct. The clerk and reporter are usually heavily relied upon by the Judge to perform the many functions of the court which are required daily to keep the court business running smoothly and thus allowing the Judge to use more of his time to perform his judicial duties.

The multi-Judge Districts elect a Presiding Judge from among their peers who serves for a term which is set by local rule. The Presiding Judge acts as the spokesman or chief officer of the Judicial District.

The position of Trial Court Executive has now been established in each of the seven Judicial Districts. The individuals selected for these positions are professional level administrators who assist in managing the various administrative functions and activities of the courts within the District under the direct supervision of the Presiding Judge. This program provides each Judicial District with administrative support on the local level whose duties and responsibilities vary and are tailored to the unique needs of the individual Districts, thus allowing the Presiding Judge to devote more of his time to his judicial duties and less time to administration of the courts. The system has proven to be most successful and worthwhile in providing "on the scene" administrative support for the courts which compliment the State Court Administrator's efforts to prove that service on a broader statewide basis.

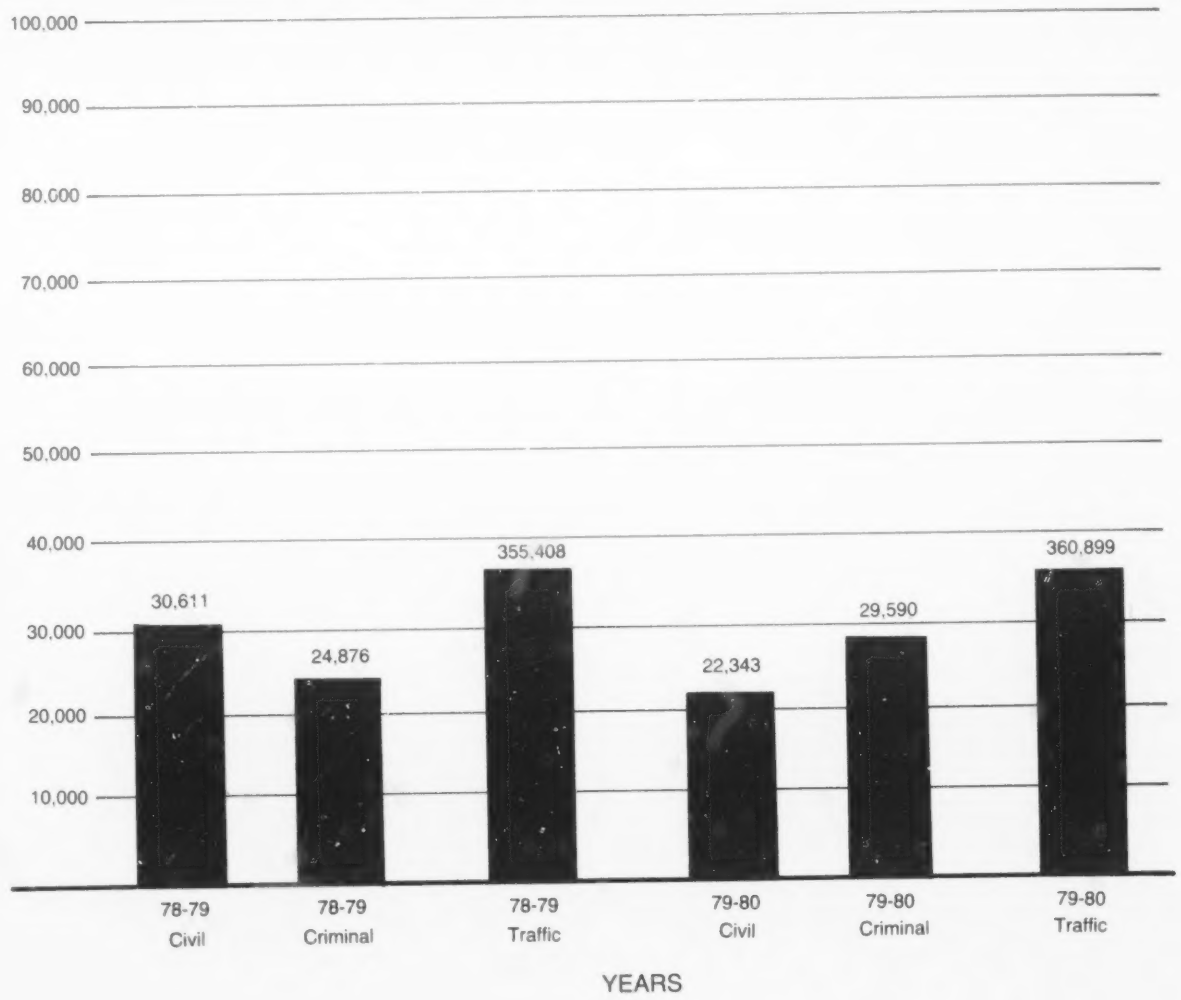
COURT DISPOSITION CIVIL CRIMINAL AND TRAFFIC



JUSTICE OF THE PEACE COURTS

A. ORGANIZATION

Justice of the Peace Courts constitute part of the judicial system in Utah having been created by the Utah Constitution.

The Legislature possesses the power to determine the number of Justices of the Peace to be elected and fix by law their powers, duties, and compensation.

The Justices of the Peace are elected or appointed within precincts established by County Commissions or within a city or town. There are 156 Justices of the Peace throughout the state as of the publication of this report, serving 203 Justice Courts.

There is no requirement that the Justice of the Peace be a member of the Bar. Any qualified elector may run for and hold the office with the only restriction being that he must reside in and hold court in the precinct, city or town in which he is elected or appointed.

Most Justices of the Peace serve on a part time basis, having other full or part time employment. In many cases, one person serves as Justice of the Peace in a city or town and in a county precinct simultaneously.

B. JURISDICTION

The territorial jurisdiction of the Justice of the Peace Courts is restricted to the precinct or city limits in civil cases and to the county boundaries in criminal cases.

The statutes set forth in detail those types of civil cases which may be heard, but in general, the claim must not exceed $750 and must not involve subject matter relating to title or possession of real property or the legality of tax.

The statutes also set forth in specificity those types of criminal cases which may be prosecuted in the Justice of the Peace Court which include misdemeanors punishable by a fine less than $300, or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both.

Enforcement of judgments from the Justice of the Peace Courts are accomplished by attachment and garnishment, and in the case of real estate, by docketing the abstract of judgment with the appropriate County Clerk. Failure to docket the judgment renders it ineffective as a lien on real property of the debtor.

C. Administration

While in the past the Justice of the Peace has had little support in the administration of his court, the state now provides an extensive training and certification program for each justice. A model record keeping system, which includes statistical and finance sections and a uniform bail schedule is also provided. Clerical and secretarial services are provided by each justice. The Justices of the Peace have created an organization among themselves known as the Utah Association of Justices of the Peace. This organization has provided substantial leadership. Policies or guidelines which have been developed have been accepted on a voluntary basis and significant progress has been made in the internal administration of Justice of the Peace affairs.

Salt Lake County has established the position of Justice of the Peace Administrator. This individual serves in much the same manner as the Trial Court Executives on the District level and provides the Justices with many of the same administrative services. The Office of the State Court Administrator has the obligation of administration for the trial courts of which the Justices of the Peace are an integral part. In fulfilling this responsibility, the Court Administrator has developed a program to provide continuing education seminars on both a basic and advanced plan.

The 1977 legislation requires mandatory attendance by all Justices of the Peace to at least one qualifying seminar supervised by the Judicial Council each calendar year commencing with 1978. Any Justice not attending for two consecutive years may be removed from office. The Judicial Council is required to include in the Annual Report the Justices who are to certified. On the following pages, the Justices who attended the 1980 education program are shown as certified.
